

SANCHITA ANILRAO BAMNOTE

ASSOCIATE

Sanchita supports strategy for commercialization of high-impact technologies in sanitation and healthcare that could potentially transform lives in India. Prior to joining ITT, Sanchita worked for Johnson & Johnson, Western Union and NITCO India. She was part of diverse projects, ranging from supply chain, production, strategy to business analytics.

Sanchita has a bachelor's and master's degree in Industrial and Systems Engineering from the Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur. She also worked as a manager and advisor to the institute's Entrepreneurship Cell, one of India's leading entrepreneurship promoting organizations, and spearheaded significant initiatives such as the PAN-India Entrepreneurship Awareness Drive and the Global Entrepreneurship Summit. At IIT, she was also responsible for the recruitment of more than 1500 students, where she contributed to critical processes like onboarding recruiters, resolving on-ground logistical issues, and delivering company requirements.

During her free time, she likes to read, and watch TV shows.
